Medicine

Kraków, Poland
5-6 June 2015

Dear Colleagues,

It is with great pleasure that we invite you to attend the McMaster International Review Course in Internal Medicine, which will take place in Kraków (Poland) on 5–6 June 2015. The two-day course will be filled with information-packed lectures delivered by an outstanding assembly of 30 speakers, who are world-renowned experts in their fields, coming from McMaster University (Canada) and from Europe. For details please see the attached brochure and visit the website www.mircim.eu.

The broad array of issues covered during the course will benefit a wide audience of general internists, subspecialists, hospitalists, family physicians, residents and fellows in training specializing in internal medicine.

The aim of the course is an accessible presentation of the most practical, up-to-date, evidence-based knowledge useful in everyday practice, with take-home messages for immediate implementation in patients' care.

The course will take place in Kraków, a charming historic city in the south of Poland and home to the Jagiellonian University, one of the oldest universities in the world. A few days spent in Kraków during the course will offer a myriad of opportunities to experience the rich cultural life and remarkable heritage that the city boasts.

Coming to Kraków gives you a chance to experience extraordinary hospitality, which includes an invitation to a unique musical feast – a concert featuring the Jazz Grammy Award Winner 2014 (see the brochure). The local organizer will also assist you in planning your stay in Kraków.

We hope to do everything in our power to make your stay an educational and memorable experience. We look forward to seeing you in Kraków in June 2015.
